Focus on Maternity and Child Care

Caring for Our Children

National Health and Safety Performance Standards:
Guidelines for Out-of-Home Child Care Programs

American Public Health Association
and American Academy of Pediatrics

Collaborative Project

150 pages, softcover, 1992

Compared to other advanced nations, the U.S. provides little help and few incentives for protecting the health of child-bearing women and their infants. This text explores current U.S. maternal and child health policies, discusses the prevalence of many problems, calls for radical change, and maps out a blueprint for universal maternity care.

This book is intended for those who formulate and implement maternal and infant health care policy. It will also be of interest to anyone concerned with maternal and infant care.

Contents: Introduction—overview and social consequences of inadequate services; Maternity and Infant Care: Definitions and Approaches—medical supervision, role of neonatal intensive care, benefits of routine health care, health promotion; Maternity and Infant Care 1990: A Decade of Decline—prevalence of the problem, health consequences of inadequate access, barriers to access, issues in providing maternity care, erosion of private insurance; Funding Options for Service Delivery—financing, state insurance plans; Implications for a National Policy—a comprehensive model, standards and quality assurance.

A Pound of Prevention: The Case for Universal Maternity Care in the U.S.

Editors: Jonathan B. Kotch, MD, MPH;
Craig H. Blakely, PhD, MPH;
Sarah S. Brown, MSPH; and Frank Y. Wong, PhD

275 pages, softcover, 1992

Caring for Our Children is the most comprehensive source of information available for the development and implementation of the health and safety standards governing out-of-home and child care centers. The guidelines address the health and safety needs of children, regardless of their age or type of child care. They provide not only information but also detailed specific information so they may be used in a variety of ways ranging from planning to practical implementation.

The field-reviewed Caring for Our Children provides essential performance requirements for: Regulatory agencies seeking national reference guidelines to update state and local child care licensing requirements; Child care providers, early childhood educators, consultants, public health professionals, pediatricians, and accreditation and credentialing agencies needing reference standards for child care services; Parents of children enrolled in child care.

Healthy Communities 2000: Model Standards

THIRD EDITION

470 pages, softcover, 1991

The essential guide for community leaders to achieve the National Health Objectives for the Year 2000.

The companion document to Healthy People 2000.

Healthy People 2000, from the U.S. Public Health Service, tells you what the National Health Objectives for the Year 2000 are; Healthy Communities 2000: Model Standards from APHA tells you how to achieve those objectives. This edition fully integrates the National Health Objectives with community strategies.

The practical tool

The guidebook specifies comprehensive goals, objectives, and indicators to help community health professionals and leaders work cooperatively to improve the health, environment, and quality of life in their communities.

Covers 22 priority areas plus four age-related areas of health promotion, health protection, and preventive services. Incorporates 10 years of field experience and testing.

A Collaborative Project of the:

- ◆ American Public Health Association
- ◆ Association of Schools of Public Health
- ◆ Association of State and Territorial Health Officials
- ◆ National Association of County Health Officials
- ◆ United States Conference of Local Health Officers
- ◆ Department of Health and Human Services, Public Health Services, Centers for Disease Control
